LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 22. Russia was under fire from several quarters today for persistently using the veto to upset majority decisions in the United Nations Security Council.

In the wake of angry outcries provoked by seven Russian vetoes this week. Argentina moved swiftly to seek abolition of the big power veto privilege by submitting a resolution for consideration of the General Assembly when it meets in New York September 16.

The Argentine government asked that the Assembly call a general conference of all the United Nations three days after the 55-nation body concludes its forthcoming session in order to revise the veto section of the U. N. Charter.

Argentina previously had asked the Assembly to consider calling such a conference, but had not suggested a specific date.

Under Article 109 of the U. N. Charter a general conference of the members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present document may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds majority of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

Veto Could Prevent Change.

But any alteration of the Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference cannot take effect until ratified by two-thirds of the member states of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Thus any one of the Big Five could use the veto to prevent abolition of the veto. In view of this fact observers agreed that the small powers, who have been fighting unsuccessfully for two years to restrict the veto, could hope for nothing more than an Assembly resolution urging the Big Five to use the veto only in extreme cases. Most delegates here said they believed that even if the majority agreed to abolish the veto Russia would block the move. But they use of the privilege in the future. majority opinion came yesterday from Council President Faris el Khoury. In announcing Russia's veto of Italy's application for U.
